Sir:

Please find enclosed herewith is Form PTO/SB/08a and a copy of each patent listed in the enclosed form.

Reference A describes a compact fuel gas reformer assemblage as used for fuel cells. The system comprises plate assembly, burner gas passages and regenerator heat exchangers.

Reference B describes a scrubber for oxidation integrated with a thermal/wet process and a source of compressed air for nitrogen and oxygen enrichment using a ceramic oxide adsorbent. The oxygen component is fed into the scrubber.

Reference C describes a system of how to reduce NO_x emissions from gas turbines. Combustion products are generated under a lean premixed fuel/air condition for a catalyst combustion system. The engine operates at startup under low load conditions with the conditioned gas and switches over to normal operation.

Reference D describes a process for preparing ethanol in a series of reaction steps using a system of specialized chemicals to also produce specified by-products.

Reference E describes a fluid power system combined with a double acting diesel engine with free pistons to produce compressed air continuously to work against a power piston adapted to perform work.

Reference F describes a thermal reactor for reducing exhaust emissions generated by an engine. The heated exhaust gas maintains a high temperature that facilitates oxidation of the exhaust gases.

Reference G describes devices for starting a double acting free piston engine having a single cylinder. The devices introduce compressed air into combustion chambers to power the position of the free piston before starting the engine. The object is to provide a starting device that is an improvement to the state of the art.
